

Subject: Public Comment

From: MikeD <fmfarm@olympen.com>

Date: Wed, 12 Nov 2008 22:03:13 -0800

To: OCNMSmanagementplan@noaa.gov

One of the most important issues today is saving the environment for future use. And it must begin with saving the oceans and all of its resources and inhabitants. The work of protecting this environment must be an on-going process and funding must never be an issue. Seeing the miles of beautiful beaches and the variety of wildlife living in and around the ocean and Strait of Juan de Fuca is awe inspiring. The work of the many volunteers who constantly monitor these areas, whether tracking the wildlife or picking up trash is invaluable. Please continue to expand the research for the Olympic Coast Sanctuary so it can be enjoyed by future generations.

Thank you,

Michael S. Dick

fmfarm@olympen.com